

Preface 11

1 Total chemical synthesis of proteins 17

- 1.1 Chemical ligation – the true breakthrough 20
- 1.2 Native chemical ligation 29
- 1.3 Convergent synthesis of proteins 44
- 1.4 Total protein syntheses enabled by chemical ligation 56
- 1.5 Impact on total chemical protein synthesis 57

2 Chemistry of enzyme catalysis 59

- 2.1 Role of hydrogen bonds in catalysis 63
- 2.2 Structure of the tetrahedral intermediate 68
- 2.3 Site-specific labeling 69
- 2.4 An artificial catalytic apparatus 72

3 Novel peptide and protein science 75

- 3.1 Hepatitis B virus immunology 77
- 3.2 Synthetic erythropoiesis protein 82
- 3.3 Ester insulin 84

4 Formative influences 91

- 4.1 Childhood and early education 93
- 4.2 Undergraduate education 107
- 4.3 Scientific apprenticeships 113
- 4.4 University of California Berkeley 126
- 4.5 PhD research 142
- 4.6 Berkeley life 149

5 Solid phase peptide synthesis 161

- 5.1 Bruce Merrifield and the Rockefeller University 164
- 5.2 New York life in the 1970s 174
- 5.3 Emil Fischer and the early years of peptide chemistry 181
- 5.4 A Golden Age of peptide synthesis 182
- 5.5 Total chemical synthesis of enzymes: claims and counterclaims 184
- 5.6 Fixing solid phase peptide synthesis 186
- 5.7 Optimized SPPS 207

6 An efflorescence of scientific creativity 209

- 6.1 A computer-controlled peptide synthesizer 212
- 6.2 Instrumentation development at Caltech 215
- 6.3 Crystal structure of the HIV-1 protease 223
- 6.4 Life at Caltech and Pasadena 226
- 6.5 The Scripps Research Institute 235
- 6.6 Life in the world of biotech 251
- 6.7 University of Chicago 252

7 Mirror image proteins 263

- 7.1 Mirror image enzymes 266
- 7.2 Mirror image drug discovery 269
- 7.3 Racemic protein crystallography 273
- 7.4 Correcting “D-allo-ShK” protein 285

8 Afterword 289

- 8.1 Acceptance and rejection of ideas 291
- 8.2 Creativity in research 297
- 8.3 An idiosyncratic approach to science 301
- 8.4 Some thoughts on academic science 305
- 8.5 A few last words of thanks 310

Appendix 311

- Vita 313
- Chemistree 314
- Holographs 316
- Publications 322
- Glossary 323
- Links 327
- Image sources 330
- Index 332